Monday, May 3. 1714.

London, May 3.
On Saturday arrived the Mails due from Holland, Flanders, and France.

From the Hague Courant, dated May 9.

Vienna, April 25.

THE Swedish General Lieven, one of the Deputies lately sent from Stockholm to the King of Sweden, having waited on his Majesty at Demotica, has sent an Express to the Senate at Stockholm, with an Account, that he for his own part was well received by the King, but that his Message was not well pleasing to his Majesty, who expressed his Dislike of the States of the Kingdom having assembled, and of their Resolution to hearken to Propositions of Peace. The said Express knew nothing certain touching his Swedish Majesty's Departure from Turkey.

From the Paris Letter, dated May 7.

Paris, May 7. 'Tis advised from Toulon the 27th of April, that most of the Barks and Vessels which sailed from Barcelona to transport to Majorca a great Number of Women, Children, and other Persons useless in a Siege, were driven by contrary Winds on the Coasts of Sardinia and Genoa: That according to the Letters from Sicily, the King would not let out from thence till about the 15th of May, to return to Piemont; whence 'twas advised, that a Body of Piemontese Troops had possessed themselves of a Post in the Vigevanasco, which they were fortifying, without any Opposition from the Germans. They write from Madrid the 23d of April, that the King had made three new Secretaries, one of State, another of the Council of the Finances, and the other of the Council of the Indies. That Monsieur Orry set out Post some Days before for Valencia, thence to proceed to Catalonia, with a great Convoy of Money for the Army; from whence 'twas advised, that the Fire of our Battery of Mortars which had been continued four Days, had done much Damage to the Place as Deserters reported; mean while the two Batteries which they had opposed against ours from the new Gate, had done us very little hurt. The Body of Rebels commanded by the Marquis de Pual, having Intelligence of the March of the Marquis de Caylus, had retired from the Mountains towards the Sea, where they found it very difficult to subsist themselves. Orders were given last Week to reform the independent Troops of Dragoons, Horse, and Hussars; those of 100 Men will be reduced to 80, those of 60 to 50, and those of 40 to 35, Officers included. The Men so dismissed may enter into other Troops which want Recruits, and every disbanded Soldier will have given him 25 Livres with his Horse, or an Equivalent for his Horse, the Officers having Power to take the Horses preferably to any other, on paying a reasonable Price. 'Tis the Talk that a Port is to be made at Mardyke near Dunkirk, which is to be full as commodious as that; 'tis even said that Men have already begun to work upon it. 'Tis talked that the Hill on the Left of the Park of Marli will be levelled, and that a Hall is to be built at Versailles near the Chappel. The Troops of the King's Household have been passing in Review before the King these 4 Days successively, and the Review will end to Day with the Gendarmerie. 'Tis reported that 10 Men of every Troop or Company of all our Forces will be disbanded, till the Peace become general. The Chevalier de Rohan and the Duke de Montbazon are condemned to a Year's Imprisonment in the Bastile, and for two Years if any one of the three Persons belonging to the Duke d'Aumont whom they wounded, dyes: But the Prince de Guimené is discharged, it appearing that he had no Hand in the Frolick. The 5th an Ecclesiastick was hanged here and afterwards burnt, for having stolen and profaned some consecrated Plate. The Corpse of the Duke of Berry having been opened the 5th, was embalmed, and will be carried to St. Denys the 12th, (as will his Heart to Val de Grace to Morrow) after the Princes have sprinkled holy Water on it. 'Twas the Duke of Orleans who first acquainted the Dutchess of Berry of her Husband's Death, and she is Sick of Grief. Letters from Naples of the 10th of April say they had Advice from Sicily, that the King applies himself to the establishing a naval Force, proposing to have forthwith 16 Men of War, several of which he has bought already.

From the Antwerp Courant, dated May 8.

Valenciennes, May 5. The Elector of Cologne's Baggage is packing up here; and as soon as the Court returns from Marli to Versailles, his Electoral Highness will make a Journey thither, to take Leave of the King. We have Letters from Court which speak very variously of the sudden Sickness and Death of the Duke of Berry.

Ghent, May 6. Letters dated Yesterday from Dunkirk tell us, that the filling up of the Harbour there is carried on apace; and that the French are preparing all Necessaries for making a Harbour at Mardyke: But that they were not without Fear the English would oppose the Execution of that Project.

From the Hague Courant, dated May 7.

Cadix, April 8. The new Imposts on Merchandise are continued to be levied here.

From the Amsterdam Courant, dated May 8.

Hague, May 6. Several Expresses from England, have passed this Way, going for Hanover and elsewhere.
